General Comment

PBGC,
I can't thank the 117th congress enough for making the correct decision and passing the Butch Lewis Act. With the rules that you have it should be important to take into consideration others who tried to save the pension system. There efforts were bold, courageous, but we all know futile. The reductions and benefit changes that were implemented did not accomplish much, if anything. The problem as we now know was structural and the ball was dropped by congress in the pension committee years ago. The over site by the GAO was lax and the warning signs were ignored by many. With these rules the following should be accomplished. All participants should be elevated to priory benefit levels. The mix of reductions by certain funds and companies was futile. The participants held up there end of the bargain. Please take into consideration the loss of benefits we take every yea because of inflation as our pensions do not have a cost of living increase. Thank you very much.

Respectfully
Donald C Deutsch Jr
